Nebraska's Winnebago tribe planning for casino windfall

JOE DEJARA
Omaha World-Herald

A new chapter is about to be written for the Winnebago people of Nebraska — on the back of a stack of betting chips.

Profits from casinos opening in Omaha and Lincoln will give the tribe a new opportunity to improve the lives of its people. Tribal members say the delightful challenge ahead is how to best spend the money expected to pour in once its casinos are up and running.

"We've never had this kind of money before," said Lance Morgan, chief executive officer of Ho-Chunk Inc., the tribe's economic development arm.

Two newly built, tribal-owned WarHorse casinos will tap gamblers' pockets in Nebraska's two largest metro areas starting this year. The tribe plans to open the new WarHorse Casino in Omaha on Aug. 8, and a few months later its sister casino in Lincoln. A third WarHorse casino is planned in South Sioux City.

Tribal casino profits could reach several million dollars a month, Morgan said. That money could change lives for generations in a place where despair and hope walk together.

Stark numbers tell the story of the despair. The unemployment rate in the village of Winnebago in 2022 was estimated at 54%, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. The estimated poverty rate in the village was 40.1%, nearly four times the state average. According to the Nebraska Department of Education, fewer than a quarter of students in the Winnebago Public Schools District scored proficient on the state's English language arts and math tests in 2022-23.

But the village, where ancient and the modern make their home about 90 miles north of Omaha, also tells the story of hope.

On the main drag is the Sweetwater Cafe, a coffee shop with a look and feel that would fit in in the trendiest areas of Omaha. Patrons can order up a Soickers latte, Dead Eye espresso drink or the popular Caramel Ilo-Chuck latte.

The cafe sits in the Ho-Chunk Village, a modern mixed-use neighborhood of homes, apartments and businesses.

Counties joined in new behavioral health group

SEN MORPHY AND MARISA PAYNE
The Gazette

Lincoln and Johnson counties will be together after all when the state is divided into seven regions for the delivery of behavioral health services next year, according to a map published Thursday by the state.

The Iowa Department of Health and Human Services is working to implement a reorganization of the state's delivery of behavioral health services. The new plan combines Iowa's total of 32 mental health and substance use regions into seven unified behavioral health districts.

The restructure aims to improve a system that both state officials and advocates agree is badly broken. It was approved by state lawmakers and signed into law by Gov. Kim Reynolds earlier this year, and goes into effect July 1, 2025.

Each of the seven districts under the new system will be required to provide a standard set of core services, ensuring consistent care systems wide, Reynolds said.

Advocates cheered the plan, saying they hope it will improve access for patients. But they say questions remain over how funding will be spread across the new districts as well as how providers and consumers seeking care will be affected in the transition.

Chesapeake blue crab found at library

JAMES MCNETT

SIOUX CITY — A Chesapeake Bay is about 1,400 miles from Sioux City but Tuesday night one of its aquatic denizens, the kind someone might slather in butter and lemon, was found on the upper floor of the Sioux City Public Library.

Staff at first thought it was a toy or fake and then maintenance touched it with a broom and it grabbed it and they realized it was alive. Sioux City Public Library Director Helen Rigdon said.

The crab, which Sioux City Library staff name "Ches-Fred" was found near the reference center (perhaps trying to find a mug back home) before he was wrangled and placed into a box.

"In my opinion, it was probably the most bizarre things I've found in a public library," Rigdon said of the half-sized crab. "I have found lots of things, we've had bats and rabbits and snakes and other questionable items left at the library, in a book drop, beer, but this is the first time we've had a sea creature."

When library staff called Sioux City Animal Adoption & Rescue Center, Rigdon said they got a good laugh from the operator.
